£17 million investment will transform the UK's ability to address major societal challenges using knowledge gained from research into human behaviour.

The Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) is investing:

£10 million to establish Behavioural Research UK (BR-UK), a new hub to connect diverse stakeholders and drive innovation

£7 million to establish a Centre for Doctoral Training and Research Excellence in Understanding Behaviours (CENTRE-UB)

Their work will expand expertise and strengthen skills.

They will work closely with policymakers and industry to make sure they can use the most up to date evidence to inform their decisions.

BR-UK

BR-UK includes representatives from academia, government and business from all four nations of the UK.

It will be led by Professor Linda Bauld of The University of Edinburgh and Professor Susan Michie of UCL.

It will:

strengthen relationships between academic and wider stakeholders in the public and private sector facilitate evidence-based decision making through high-impact research that meets the needs of policymakers, industry, and civil society increase the use and linkage of existing data and data infrastructures develop innovative approaches and methods, and involve communities in behavioural research

Building on decades of research

ADVERTISEMENTS

Professor Linda Bauld and Professor Susan Michie said:

BR-UK builds on decades of research to understand and enable change in human behaviour.

The pandemic has highlighted the critical role of context in shaping behaviour.

Understanding societal shifts and people's responses is vital for governments, businesses and organisations.

Our partnership of academics and knowledge users will generate and translate a breadth of evidence, methods and theory to address current and future challenges.

Our aim is to achieve a step-change in the quality and quantity of behavioural research by providing leadership and support to build interdisciplinary collaborations, effective knowledge translation and capacity development.

With our strong research partnerships and emerging networks, we'll build enduring structures and activities, ensuring the legacy of our work continues for years beyond this five-year program.

CENTRE-UB

CENTRE-UB will be led by Professor Jessica Woodhams of the University of Birmingham with local, national and international partners from across the public and private sector.

It will:

produce PhD graduates able to address the needs of policymakers, business, and civil society

develop a cohort of early career researchers able to pursue a career in applied behavioural research within and outside of academia deliver a flexible training and development programme for researchers in government and other sectors that accelerates the use behavioural research findings and methods in local and national decision making

Valuable resource

Professor Woodhams said:

I am honoured to be leading the Centre for National Training and Research Excellence in Understanding Behaviour.

Human behaviour can be the cause of, but also the solution, to many societal challenges and CENTRE-UB will provide valuable resource for the study of behaviour nationwide.

Key to CENTRE-UB is our close engagement and collaboration with non-academic partners in the public and private sectors to positively influence policy and provide improved education for researchers and government.

Achieving strategic objectives

ESRC aims to ensure the full power of UK social science is brought to bear in tackling the most pressing global, national and local challenges.

As part of UK Research and Innovation (UKRI), ESRC supports interdisciplinary work and implementing ESRC delivery plan commitments that contribute to achieving UKRI's five-year strategy.

Enabling greater understanding of human behaviour is a key priority in ESRC's delivery plan and these investments will support a broad spectrum of evidence-based decision making for the benefit of UK society.

A Big Thank You

A big thank you to those of you who attended the AV13 Conference in Milton Keynes. It was fantastic to finally get back together and welcome old friends and newcomers to a very enjoyable and memorable event. We are already already working on the next AV events.

If you didn't make it to AV13 we now have the presentation recordings available.

Regards and best wishes.

The AV Team.
